THE MODOC TRIAL.

Second Day.

MONDAY, July 7th.

The Commission met pursuant to adjournment, all the members present.

TESTIMONY OF SHACKNASTY JIM.

Shacknasty Jim, one of the Modocs who deserted Captain Jack and aided in his capture, was then called as a witness.

The Judge Advocate instructed the interpreter to inform the witness that he was going to swear him to tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, and that if he (the witness) told anything but the truth he would be placed in the same position as the prisoners now under trial.

Q—Do you know when General Canby was killed? A—Yes; I know.

Q—Did you know he was to be killed? A.—Yes.

Q—How did you know? A—Had a talk the evening before. All the Indians talked. Jack and Sconchin were the principal speakers. I did not hear them say that they would kill the Peace Commissioners, but heard them talk about it.

Q—What Indians were present when General Canby was killed? A.—Captain Jack, Sconchin, myself, Black Jim, Ellen's man, Boston Charley and Hooka Jim. After the shooting commenced, Scarfaced Charley, Bonchew, Sholocks and Steamboat Frank came out of the rocks—the three latter packing guns.

The witness then testified that he saw Captain Jack shoot General Canby, and that Ellen's man also shot him, and that he—the witness—ran after and chased Frank Riddle.

Question by Commission—What did Boston Charley do? A.—He shot Dr. Thomas.

Q—What did Black Jim do? A.—He was after Meacham, and I saw him fire.

Q—What did Sholocks do? A—I did not see what he done.

Q—Did Jack say anything before he fired? A.—I was so far away I could not hear.

This was interpreted to the prisoners and the witness dismissed.

TESTIMONY OF STEAMBOAT FRANK.

Steamboat Frank was called and the oath administered.

Q—Are you called Steamboat Frank? A—Yes.

Q—Were you present at the death of General Canby? A.—I was quite a distance from them, and with Scarfaced Charley.

Q—Did you know that the Indians were going to kill Gen. Canby and the Peace Commissioners? A.—I did.

Q.—Who did you hear talk about this. A.—Captain Jack and Sconchin.

Q—Who proposed this? A.—Captain Jack, and he, Jack, talked about it the evening before and on the morning of the massacre.

Some such question as the following was then asked the witness:

Q—Did you go to the scene of the massacre of your own accord? A—Capt. Jack sent me there.

TESTIMONY OF BOGUS CHARLEY.

Bogus Charley was then called up and sworn.

Q.—What is your name? A—Bogus Charley.

Q.—Were you present at the death of General Canby? A.—Yes.

Q—Did you know the Indians were going to kill General Canby and the Peace Commissioners. A.—I heard a little talk about it between Jack and Sconchin, and William also told me.

Q—What did he tell you? A.—He told me that the Indians were going to kill the Peace Commissioners while they were talking good talk.

Q.—By Judge Advocate—Do you like Captain Jack? A.—I do not like him now.

Q.—Have you had a quarrel with Jack. A.—Yes.

TESTIMONY OF HOOKA JIM.

Hooka Jim was called and sworn.

Q—What is your name? A.—Hooka Jim.

Q—Were you present when General Canby was killed. A.—Yes.

Q—Did you know this was going to happen? A.—Yes.

Q.—Are you a friend of Captain Jack? A.—I have been a friend, but do not know why he got angry with me.

Q—How did you know the Peace Commissioners were to be killed? A.—I knew they would be killed when they went there.

Q.—How did you know? A.—I heard Captain Jack and Sconchin talk about it.

Q—Where were they when you heard them talking about it? A.—At Captain Jack's house.

Q (by the Commission)—What part did you take in the murder of the Commission? A.—I ran after Dyar and shot at him.

Q—Did you agree to kill any one of these men? A.—I said I would if I could.

Q.—Do you like or dislike Captain Jack? A.—I don't like him very well.

MR. DYAR

Was asked by Colonel Pollock, Was it your sense of duty, or fear of being called a coward, that prompted you go to and meet the Modocs in council on the 11th of April? A.—Both, and for fear of a failure on part of the Commission I was also afraid I would be branded a coward.

Third Day.

TUESDAY, July 8.

Jack entered upon his defense.

Jack was asked if he desired to call any witnesses. A.—I want Dave, Mose and Scar faced Charley.

The Commission ordered them to be brought in—Dave and Mose in irons.

Q—Ask Jack which one he wants to talk to first? A.—Charley.

Charley was called and sworn.

TESTIMONY OF SCAR-FACED CHARLEY.

Q—Ask Jack what he wants to say to him? A.—Jack wants Charley to tell about Link river—Jack bringing powder.

Charley says the Klamath Lake Indians met us near Lewis Land's after the battle of Lost river, and told us not to shoot at them when they came with the soldiers, but to shoot at the soldiers; also that the Klamath Lake Indians said they would be their friends by and by; but they afterward came and fought us in the lava bed. Ten Klamath Lake Indians came to us in the lava bed, and Jack got a gun from one and I got eighty caps from another. The Klamath Lake Indians who came told me that Allen David had instructed them to shoot in the air, and that they did so, and were their friends. A one eyed Link Indian gave Jack twenty caps, One Eye also gave Modoc George a horn full of powder. Jack's band took a gun and one pistol from the Klamath Lake Indians, because they (the Klamath Lakes) had stolen our horses.

Riddle asks if the Klamath Lake Indians ever told them to kill Canby? A.—No.

Q—Charley, did you see Jack kill Canby? A—I was away off, and did not see him do it. We caught Link John and took him to our camp. John talked a long time, and said he would not fight the Modocs, and told us to fight hard and kill all the soldiers we could, and that Allen David told us to fire in the air. Charley told John not to lie, and he professed friendship.

Q—Who heard this? A.—All the Indians.

Q—Did any white man ever tell you to fight? A.—No. Little John told me that all the Yainax Indians were mad at us, and never wanted to see the Modocs again.

Q.—Did old Sconchin ever advise you to fight? A.—No, he would not speak to us. Link River John told us that all the Indians at Yainax were afraid, but that the Klamath Lake Indians were not, and told us to fight. The way we got most of our ammunition was, that after the fight of the 17th of January, we went around and picked up cartridges, took out the powder and run the balls over. We had plenty of caps. Klamath Lake Indians were in the fight of the 17th of January. The Klamath Lakes lay down, and after the soldiers had gone I went to them and got ammunition, and they told us they had laid down on purpose to get a talk with us. The soldiers had quit fighting, and we were on our way home to the stronghold. The Klamath Lakes told us they were our friends. I took off my pistol and told them they had urged on this fight. They professed friendship, and I told them they could show their friendship by leaving their ammunition under a rock, and I could get it next day. They did, and I got 100 rounds myself.

By the Court—Tell Jack to ask him some other question.

To Charley—What else do you know?

Q—Where was you when General Canby was killed? Locate your position as near as possible! A.—I was stopping round the head in the lake between a quarter and a half mile.

Q—Which, if any, of the prisoners at the bar were at the killing of General Canby? A—George dead, Boston, Hooka, Bogus, Jack, Sconchin and Shacknasty. After Jack went out Bonchew and Sholocks went out. Saw firing from the distance.

TESTIMONY OF DAVE.

Dave and Mose were called into court. Dave being sworn, the following is the substance of his testimony:

Jack wanted Dave to tell what La Lakes did. Answer—He told us not to give up, but to fight. I saw him at Fairchild's ranch, and a long time I shook hands. La Lakes told me he had come to see all the Modocs and have a talk. La Lakes asked me why the Modocs did not come to talk with him, and told me that Allen David had sent word for them to fight it out, and had told his men to get a place like the Modocs had to fight in, and that he was ashamed he had not seen them before the fight at Lost river took place. La Lakes told me that the soldiers wanted to get Jack out for the purpose of making peace, and that they would then burn him.

TESTIMONY OF MOSE.

Mose being sworn, his evidence in substance was about the same as the foregoing witness' testimony.

TESTIMONY OF LIEUTENANT ANDERSON.

H. R. Anderson, Lieutenant Fourth Artillery, being called and sworn, testified as to the command of Gen. Canby and his duties.

Q—Was he in receipt of instructions from any source as to the course he was to pursue? Was he receiving instructions from time to time? A.—Yes, sir; from time to time, from the Commanding General of the army.

Q.—What kind of instructions were they? Did you see them yourself? A.—Yes, sir; generally telegraphic instructions.

Q—What was their nature? What did they instruct him to do? A.—Instructed him to use his utmost endeavors to bring about a peaceable termination of the trouble.

Q—What relation did he hold with the Peace Commissioners? A.—He was ordered down there to consult and advise with them.

Q—At the time General Canby was killed what kind, if any, military operations were going on? A.—None whatever.

Q—He was not alone there negotiating with the Indians? A.—No, sir; there were troops encamped within two miles on one side and about three on the other of Captain Jack's stronghold.

Q—Were there hostile forces on both sides? A—I don't know whether they were considered hostile at the negotiations or not. There had been no peace made; there were only negotiations going on and a cessation of hostilities.

Q—How many engagements had there been? A.—There had been two general engagements with the troops and one or two skirmishes—22 or 23 were killed or had died from wounds.

Q—How do you characterize the contest that was going on? A.—An Indian war.

Q—At the time of General Canby's death, I think you said, a suspension of arms and hostilities was existing? A.—Yes, sir.

Q—Do you desire to make any further statement? A.—No, sir; except to say that the troops had moved up after the first negotiations of the peace by the Peace Commissioners. [illegible] Fairchild's, they had entirely broken off negotiations, and a movement of troops had taken place during the time that there was no communication between the Indians and the Peace Commissioners, which, I think, was some eight or ten days. The troops moved up, and there were messages sent in from the Commission, desiring to have a talk, and they had a talk.

TESTIMONY OF ASSISTANT SURGEON M'ELDERRY.

Henry McElderry, Assistant Surgeon U. S A., testified that he saw Canby dead, and further as follows: He had been entirely stripped of every article of clothing. He had three wounds on his body and several abrasions of the face. One of the wounds was apparently made by a ball and was about at the inner canthus of the left eye. He also testified as to the wounds of Dr. Thomas and the death of others killed in different battles with the Modocs.

CAPTAIN JACK MAKES A SPEECH.

Colonel Elliott—Tell Jack that everything he says will go to the President.

Jack—Riddle always told me to be a good man. I know the white man's heart, but not the Indian's. Rosebrough has always given me good advice. I have always known the whites had good hearts. I do not know all the Indians. I considered myself as a white man and took papers. I knew all the people in the country, and they all knew me to be an honest man. Everybody in Yreka knows me, but you men here do not. I could always get a pass from the whites, and it would say I was "a good Indian." No man can say that I have ever done anything wrong. The white men, whenever they saw me pass, knew I was good. I have always spoke in favor of the whites, but I do not know of any other chief who did so. I would like to see the man, and cannot see why the whites got mad at me. I told them to come; never got anything only what I paid for. I lived like the whites; lived upon what I could kill and catch, never begged. [To Riddle.] Got it honestly; have always took your advice until the war began; hardly know how to talk; do not know how white men talk. I always told the white men to come and live in my country without pay. I did not know the war was going to commence. Major Jackson and Meacham talked good; understood I was to have a talk with J. Applegate; wanted H. Miller to be present. He gave me good advice. Miller wanted to talk for me and be present. D. Crawley also wanted me to get my rights. It scared me when Major Jackson came in the morning. I had no clothes on and did not understand why they came. When Jackson came to my camp I told him not to shoot; told Bogus to go and talk. He would not go. Charley did go and told them not to shoot. Then all got off their horses, and I thought we were going to have a talk. I did not know why they came to fight me. I sat down. Only a few Modocs there. The Major shot my men down while they were standing round. I ran away. I did not want to fight. I took care of my wounded women. I ran away. I did nothing. I went to the lava bed; had only a few people. I did not want to fight. On my way to the lava bed I met a man and sent him back. I staid in the lava bed, and did not want to fight. I saw no white man for a long time. I staid in the lava bed. John Fairchild came and asked me if I wanted to fight. Told him no, I did not want to fight any more. Hot Creeks started for reservation via Linkville. Got frightened at Klamath Ferry and ran away. Then the Hot Creeks came to my camp and told me we would be killed. They got scared and all come to me. Some of the Indians were still at Hot Creek, going to Lost river, and they ran also. When all were at a place I told some to go back to Fairchild. Hot Creeks came to me. Hooka Jim was on the north side. I did not know of the murders until Hooka Jim told me, and did not think that they would kill the whites; did not want them to stay, did not tell them to kill any, don't know who told them to do so, I told Hooka I never killed any one, and it was not done with my consent. I thought the whites liked me. [To Hooka] What did you kill them for? You done it on your own account. I thought the whites would be mad; never told any of my men to kill, told them it was bad and they ought not to do it; all mad because Hooka did; after leaving Lost river I did not intend to fight. Fairchild told me it was bad, and if I did not quit soldiers would come, I told him I would quit if the soldiers would; I also told him I was afraid to go to his house. I did not come for a long time. I was afraid, I did not get any news for a long time. Fairchild did not come; after a long time Fairchild came with a squaw, and told me to make peace—the people all mad; nothing going on, then the soldiers came, when they came fought all day on the first day and a little next; fought part of two days, then Link River John told me not to be mad at the Klamath Lakes, as they would not shoot at us. I had a talk with some of the Klamath Lakes about it before the fight of the 17th of January. It was a long time and no fighting; long time and no talk. Fairchild came and wanted me to come and have a good talk; he told me the whites were mad on account of the murders on Tule, I told him I never did it, and I told him I didn't want to fight any more, no more war and was ready to quit. I also told him I didn't want the Lost river any more because blood had been spilt there, and I would get a new home. I always wanted to quit and my people were afraid to leave the cave; my women all afraid to leave. While the peace talk was going on a squaw come and said that N. Besswick told her they would be killed. Then an old man came—one who was killed—then N. Besswick told the old man that the Peace Commissioners would murder them in council. All the people heard this, and then another squaw came from Fairchild's, and told that Meacham had a pile of wood ready, and would burn me, and that if they got me to go there they would burn me. All the squaws told me the same thing. After hearing all this I was afraid to come. [To Riddle] You and Toby gave me good advice. If I had listened to you and not to the lying squaws, I would not be in the fix I now am. The reason I did not come when the wagon was sent was because of the story of the squaws. I can now see that all the squaws and Whittle's squaw lied to me. She told me she was not of my people, and she did not give me good advice. She told me if she didn't come back next day I might know the soldiers would come next day. I have told all about the lies I heard, and I was afraid to come. When you come to see me I was not chief. When the reporters come I didn't want to fight, and did not know what to say. The white man's chief believes his men, but my men would not; I told them not to fight. I wanted to make peace, but the men would not listen to me. None of the men in the cave can say that I ever told them to fight; and when I met in council it was in a friendly way, and that if they would fight it would be against my will.

My being chief is the cause of the whites thinking me the cause of all this trouble. I told them the whites would think this, and they must fight on their own account. Hooka advocated fight, and I got the blame. Sconchin, with Hooka and all, was mad at me. There were different thoughts about what the whites would think. My men would not. I love my wife and children, and wanted peace. Hooka is the one who always advocated fight; he called me an "old squaw." Hooka and I fought; I told him he was the cause, and if I could have seen him I wanted to kill him, because he killed men on Tule Lake. I thought the whites wanted Lost river, and that is why the fight commenced. I fight with George, because I fell out with Hooka, and he called me a squaw because I never kill white man. He (George) had killed many whites and soldiers. I told him so. George was not ashamed of it. He told me I lay around the camp like a [illegible] and they went and killed and stole and were not afraid. They would say to me, "What do you want with a gun? You never do anything worth it. You sit on the rocks and do nothing." I was not ashamed to be called a squaw, and told them they killed against my will. Scar-faced Charley told me he would go with Hooka. I told them to go—I did not want to live with them. Scar face will tell everything, and I do not want to keep anything back.

SCONCHIN'S SPEECH.

Sconchin John was called, and spoke as follows: When I was camped on Lost river I was scared by the soldiers while living in peace, killing ducks. I was out hunting, and looked up and saw the soldiers fighting. I wondered if the soldiers were fighting why they came to kill my children, and did not know why they came. I saw the Indians putting the wounded in a canoe. When I got there Indians all gone, houses on fire, and I went to the hills in search of my family. I found Hooka Jim. He told me two of our men killed. Hooka very mad, and kept on in the mountains. I told him not to fight, but to stay in the mountains. I followed him a long way, and talked to him. He saw four white men. I did not see them. I was on foot; the others were riding. I left them at the lake. After we parted my son followed Hooka. I told him not to go, I sat down on a rock for a long time. I looked toward Lost river and saw the soldiers coming. Then I came down from the mountain to the lake and met the Doctor and Hooka. I told them not to kill, but they would not listen. I saw two men [illegible] the south end of the lake.

The Court then adjourned until 9:30 A. M. to-morrow.

Fourth Day.

WEDNESDAY, July 9th.

Jack was asked by the Judge Advocate, through the interpreter, if he had anything more to say, and instructed him not to talk upon the subject on which he had spoken the evening previous. Jack went on to state in substance about as follows:

SECOND SPEECH BY CAPTAIN JACK.

The four scouts, Bogus Charley, Shacknasty Jim, Steamboat Frank, and H[illegible] advocated, with me and others, the murder of General Canby and the Peace Commissioners. The discussion about the murder of Canby did not take place in my cave, but in the camp of the other Indians. All the Indians agreed to the murder, because they did not want to go away from this to another country. Hooka Jim went out on the morning of the 11th of April for the express purpose of killing Meacham. The four scouts above mentioned all advised me in council to be a party to the massacre of Canby and the P[illegible] Commission, and I always thought I would have to bear the blame. Another thing which made me afraid to kill the Peace Commissioners was that I had been told that they carried arms and that they would kill me when we met. Hooka Jim again advised the killing of Meacham and the Peace Commission, but I did not want to do so or to have any trouble with them.

Jack then stated that he had nothing more to say.

THE JUDGE ADVOCATE EXONERATES CAPT. JACKSON FROM CAPT. JACK'S IMPUTATIONS.

The Judge Advocate arose and informed the court that Jack, in his speech on the evening previous, had cast an imputation upon the character and conduct of Captain Jackson. He then [illegible] several official papers, and [illegible] the report of Captain Jackson after the battle of Lost river to Major John Gre[illegible], post commander at Fort Klamath; also, the order commanding Capt. Jackson to proceed to Lost river immediately and bring Jack's band of Modocs on the reservation peaceably if possible, but forcibly if he must. The Judge Advocate also said that these Indians had entered into a treaty with the United States Government to live and remain upon the Klamath Reservation; and that they had left the reservation shortly after coming upon it, and that Meacham, then Superintendent of Indian Affairs for Oregon, had been compelled to gather them and bring them back to the Klamath Reservation on two different occasions, and that they (the Modocs) were at the time at which Capt. Jackson (November 29, 1872), went after them, living in open violation of the treaty made and signed between the Modoc bands and the United States. The Judge Advocate also stated that he only read the foregoing papers for the purpose of exonerating Captain Jackson from the imputations of Captain Jack in his speech to the Commission.

The prisoners were remanded to the custody of the guard, and the Commission went into secret session.

SATANTA AND BIG TREE.—The Washington Chronicle of the 3d inst. says:

Yesterday afternoon a conference was held between Gov. Davis, of Texas, and the Commissioner of Indian Affairs with reference to the disposition of Satanta and Big Tree. The points involved in this matter are exceedingly interesting and complicated. The election will come off in the fall, and as Gov. Davis will either run for Governor or United States Senator, it would of course, be injudicious for him to offend the public sentiment of the State, which he is bound to execute, and which is overwhelmingly in favor of the punishment of these Indians. If the future could be foreseen, Gov. Davis would acquiesce in the wishes of the Indian Office to pardon them, but should he consent to their pardon—and without his consent they cannot be pardoned—and should the Kiowas subsequently commit any depredations, his act would become one of especial unpopularity. All these points were talked over yesterday, and it was practically concluded that Satanta and Big Tree shall not be released, but shall be punished as originally intended.

A thoroughly French story reaches us by private letter from Alsace. The writer says: "We have found out one very nice way of annoying our oppressors. Very many of the Prussian officers have little white dogs. We catch these little white dogs and color their heads and shoulders red and the hind-quarters blue, leaving a white streak in the middle. Then we let the dogs go, and get around and hear the Prussians swear. It makes them very angry, indeed."—Philadelphia Press.

The Goodrich Murder.

NEW YORK, July 15.—There is still much mystery surrounding the Goodrich murder. The police are doing their best to secure the Spaniard, Roscoe. Full reliance is not placed on the story of Lizzie King that she had no accomplice, never knew Roscoe, and don't believe there is any such man. She explains the fact of four chambers of the pistol found by Goodrich's body being discharged by saying that three shots in Goodrich's head were from her pistol, and that after he was dead she took his pistol and discharged four shots down the cellar. Miss Palmer, the betrothed of Goodrich, remained with Lizzie King until a late hour last evening. Her object has not been ascertained.

The Brooklyn Murder Mystery.

NEW YORK, July 15.—The police are still actively searching for the Spaniard Roscoe, alleged to be concerned in the murder of Goodrich. It is believed that Kate Stoddard admitted Roscoe to the house in De[illegible] street, and that the murder was committed by the pair. The police say that they have all the proof required to convict Roscoe. This has been furnished by the confession of Kate Stoddard. Roscoe has not been seen around any of his old haunts since the arrest of his accomplice, and as he always had plenty of money it is believed he has taken himself off to a distant city. An accurate description of him has been sent to the police of all the cities in the United States and Canada.

Portland, July 14, 1873

The Centennial Celebration.

By the act of Congress providing for the Centennial exposition and celebration of the hundredth anniversary of American independence, it was made the duty of the President of the United States, whenever he should be informed by the government of Pennsylvania that provision had been made for the erection of suitable buildings for the purpose of an international exposition and for the exclusive control of such buildings and management of such exposition by the National Centennial Commission created by the act, to make proclamation of the same, and to fix and designate the time and place for holding the exposition. In accordance with these provisions, the President, having duly received the notice contemplated, issued his proclamation on the 4th instant, naming Fairmount Park, which is within the corporate limits of Philadelphia, as the place, and designating the 19th of April for the opening and the 19th of October for the closing of the Exposition. There could not be a more appropriate place selected for this grand national festival. To every natural advantage, is superadded the fact that it is within the corporate limits of the city in which the heroic fathers of the Republic signed that immortal declaration which, had its purpose failed, would inevitably have cost them the lives and the fortunes, if not the sacred honor, they pledged to the maintenance of independent Government in America. The bell on Liberty Hall may peal its notes of solemn joy on the morning of the nation's hundredth birthday, in the hearing of a larger concourse of her people than was ever yet gathered together on the earth. And not less fit are the days designated for the opening and closing of the celebration. The 19th of April is the anniversary of the battle of Lexington, the first engagement of the Revolutionary war. The opening of the Exposition on that day will at once commemorate the initial event of the actual struggle for liberty, and mark the opening of the beautiful springtime when nature is just putting on her robes of loveliness, type of the freshness and promise of our national youth. The closing day, the 19th of October, is the anniversary of the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown, and the triumphant closing up of the conflict for freedom: the autumn when, the toils of the [illegible] summer over, the happy laborers shout the the harvest home.

To-day (17th) the great College regatta will come off over the Springfield course. Hitherto these boating matches have been held on Quinsigamond, near Worcester. But this year, Yale objected, notwithstanding the fact that Quinsigamond is the finest sheet of water in the United States, for this purpose. However, the Connecticut at Springfield makes a very fine course when once the crews have become accustomed to the currents. The contest of to-day will be most exciting; and every Yankee will watch for announcement of the result with the same local pride that inspires the Englishman when the Derby is on hands. The crews that go in this contest are: Harvard, Amherst, Columbia, Dartmouth, Williams, and Yale. The Freshman races are to come off at this grand event of the year. Of [illegible], with Massachusetts men, the odds are on Harvard.

The police of Brooklyn seem to be just about as near the solution of the Goodrich murder mystery as they were six weeks ago. Kate Stoddard confessed voluntarily. Had it not been for this we do not know what the detectives would have done. Our morning dispatches say that Roscoe has not been seen around any of his old haunts since the arrest of his alleged accomplice! The fact of the [illegible] is, the police have been looking for the [illegible] Roscoe ever since the commission of the murder! We are forced upon the conviction that Roscoe is a mythical personage whose existence is a convenience to a discomfited force of detectives.

With the payment of 500,000,000 francs on the 5th of September next, the permanent withdrawal of German troops from French territory will commence. The army of occupation [illegible] the departments of Meuse, Moselle, Vosges and Meurthe. These will be partially evacuated only. It will be remembered that one of the most bitter prescriptions of the treaty of Versailles was that portion which restored to Germany some of the richest portions of Alsace and Lorraine. France must give Metz and more than half the country in the department of the Moselle; large parts of Meurthe and Vosges departments, Strasburg, Toule, and, in fact, nearly every strategic point of importance, in the hands of the conquering Prussian. It will be many a weary year before she can reasonably hope to regain them, and under any circumstances the attempt would be most dangerous to the remaining parts of dismembered Lorraine.

At the last half-monthly meeting of the British Royal Geographical Society, held in London, Sir Bartle Frere announced that the King of Italy had intrusted him with a gold medal to be handed to Dr. Livingstone, the great African explorer. Sir Bartle also read a letter stating that the Queen had been graciously pleased to approve of the recommendation of Mr. Gladstone of the grant of a pension of £300 per annum on the Civil List, in recognition of the value of his researches in Central Africa."

Mr. Justice White, of Richmond, Va., steps in just now to rescue the waning reputation of the village woolsack. In the case of nineteen barbers, this model Justice of the Peace has decided that shaving on Sunday has become a necessity by long usage and public opinion, and is an adjunct to that proper cleanliness—which is next to godliness—that is necessary for proper attendance upon Church services, and a due observance of the Sabbath

'There may be errors in the management of the roads, and occasional hardships in individual cases, which no ordinary foresight could remedy or prevent.—J. G. in Bulletin.

One of those individual hardships is felt by the [illegible] of Hillsboro, Washington county, and another by the community about Forest Grove. A judicious management of affairs at these two points, would greatly augment the receipts of the railroad company, and make friends of several farmers, too.

The Flour Trade of Oregon.

Nothing is more soothing to a person in trouble than the manifestation of a generous sympathy by those around him. Your neighbor may be wholly unable to assist you, in any tangible way, but still he can greatly mitigate your miseries by letting you see that he has fellow feeling for you. Even such a helpless but deeply sympathizing friend has Oregon in San Francisco, as evidence of which we quote the following tearful deliverance from the San Francisco Bulletin of the 10th instant

> The unpleasant fact is beginning to dawn upon the understanding of the manufacturers of flour in Oregon, that the market which they have during the past supplied with flour is fast failing, and that they must soon seek a market somewhere else. The splendid water power possessed by Oregon has made the manufacture of flour there quite an important industry. Hitherto its millers have been able to compete successfully with the millers of this city, the cost of transportation being more than counterbalanced by the saving accruing from the operation of their mills with water power instead of with steam. There has also been a shade of difference between the price of wheat in Oregon and that prevailing in this city, in favor of the millers of the former. Of late, however, this difference has, by various causes, been equalized, and the Oregonian miller is now compelled to pay to the farmer as much for wheat as the miller in this city has to do. He is thus unable to sustain the competition any longer without suffering a great loss.
> Since this revolution in the condition of things has taken place, Oregon is becoming sorely perplexed over the prospective destruction of one of its most promising industries. It is sadly at a loss to know where it shall get another market in lieu of the one it has lost. The outlook is not encouraging. The construction of the Northern Pacific Railroad to Puget Sound, it hopes will give access to a new market in the towns situated thereon, and in the adjacent province of British Columbia. The latter at present takes from 25,000 to 30,000 barrels of Oregon flour per year, and it is expected that it will be doubled on the opening of the railroad. This would indicate that the conversion of Oregon wheat into flour for export must ever remain limited, and the growth of the industry will only keep step with its own internal development.

There is no man in Oregon who will not feel profoundly impressed by this exhibition of unselfish interest in our commercial prospects, and we, therefore, do not hesitate to assume the position of representative of all the Webfeet, and return our and their heartfelt thanks for so prompt a kindness.

The statement of a few facts, however, of which the writer of this article does not appear to be fully aware, might have a tendency to convince him and any of his readers under whose eye they may chance to fall, that the condition of the Webfoot nation, though bad enough, is by no means so desperate as the writer seems to suppose. Oregon long, since ceased to rely wholly upon California for a market for her surplus of breadstuffs. Very large quantities of wheat and flour have been shipped from the Columbia river to the Atlantic cities and to foreign markets during the last two years, and especially during the last year. Ship loads of Oregon flour leave Portland for China direct, and we are so situated geographically that we can always rival California in that vastly increasing market. We also send large quantities of wheat and flour to Liverpool direct. And Oregon flour has a regular and ready sale in New York and Boston, whither our millers ship large amounts. Oregon some time ago was looking about somewhat anxiously for a market for grain and flour, so as to free her from absolute dependence on the limited and unsteady market offered by California, but her shippers have long since ceased to feel so absorbing an interest in the subject, having already established themselves in the confidence of markets that cannot be forestalled with a few thousand barrels. What a disinterested part San Francisco acted in helping Oregon find this better market is apparent in the fact, that when one of our shippers, a few years since, shipped a cargo of flour to New York, a prominent newspaper of San Francisco came out with an article expressing great sorrow and even indignation at the transaction, because that cargo would be reported in New York as California flour, and would ruin the reputation of California brands. But the cargo arrived safely, and was put in the market as Oregon flour; and as soon as it was examined it went off like hot cakes at a dollar more on the barrel than the best California brands, and it has kept from fifty cents to three dollars per barrel ahead of the best California, ever since. Only look at the New York market reports, and you will find Oregon brands of flour quoted at the very highest rates, and always above California brands. Pick up the New York Times—take it at random if you choose—and see if we are not speaking the truth.

And, furthermore, the best Oregon brands are to-day selling for fifty cents to a dollar more on the barrel, in San Francisco, than California brands. This is a fact that can not be gainsaid. Best California is quoted at $5 50 per barrel, but it does not sell at that amount. Its best jobbing rates are $5@$5 12, while first-class Oregon sells readily for $5 25@$5 50. This is the truth, and it may as well be told.

So it is pretty plain that in a pinch, Oregon could compete successfully with California for the local trade of San Francisco, the superiority of our brands being about sufficient to pay freight thither. When it becomes necessary, our millers and merchants may conclude to go into the home market against their sympathizing neighbor, but being capitalists themselves, they are at present engaged in building up a reputation and business abroad, with the purpose of establishing direct trade both ways with foreign markets—selling them our breadstuffs, and importing their merchandise directly into Oregon.

The St. Louis papers have an exceedingly uncomplimentary style when speaking of the aldermen of that city. One paper says of a member of the City Council that he "does a larger business in expressing his opinions, on a smaller amount of capital, than any other man in seven States."

That Gauge.

HILLSBORO, July 15.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

The Bulletin says, in an article signed J. G., "It is not improbable that certain parties will endeavor to drag the freight question into the election." Not at all, Bro. J. G., especially in Washington county, as the railroad don't take freight at but one point (except eggs), hence the farmers don't pay any. "If so, it will be found on full investigation that instead of Holladay gouging the farmers, Ben Holladay and the bond-holders are the worst gouged set of men that ever set foot in these parts," and all on account of not getting freight. The last sentence quoted certainly indicates a dawning of reason. The farmers would certainly patronize the road but for the good reason that they won't let them.

A horrible affair has occurred at Roxbury, Delaware county, Mass. A young woman named Mary Moore has been for some time slightly deranged, and her relatives intended soon to take her to an insane asylum. This fact coming to her ears made her very melancholy, and she told them "they would be sorry for it." Soon after, while the relatives were absent, the young woman set her clothes on fire and crawled into bed, also firing the bedding. In a few minutes the friends returned, and every effort was made to extinguish the flames and save the girl's life, but she was so terribly burned that she died in a few minutes.

General. Butler Cornered

"Mr. Butler's Celebration," for so the Boston papers styled the great Union Temperance meeting at Framingham, which was addressed by General Butler on the Fourth) was a remarkable affair in some respects. Before the orator of the day made his appearance, several prominent temperance speakers addressed the audience in strong anti-Butler speeches, demanding that the doughty General be called out on the temperance question and made to "face the Music." At half-past one the Essex statesman began his speech. He discussed almost every question in the range of national politics, paying his respects in strong conservative language to the railway problem, and denounced Governor Washburn in unmeasured terms for neglect of official duty. At the close of General Butler's address the following amusing incident occurred. We quote from the Boston Advertiser

> As General Butler was about to resume his seat Mr. Godfrey, following out the plan previously arranged, said "Will General Butler tell us whether he is among the friends or opponents of the present liquor law?"
>
> General Butler—Will the gentleman from Milford please remember that asking questions of a Fourth of July orator is like whistling at a funeral? [Laughter and hisses]
>
> Mr Godfrey—We want to know where he is in the present campaign [A voice—"Give the calf more corn"] Will General Butler tell the people where he is, the people have a right to know and want to know. [Hisses and cries of "Shut up" "Dry up"]
> General Butler then quietly donned his linen duster, bade adieu to the chairman, and glided quietly through crowd to the back which was waiting in the grove. He was in Boston again at five o'clock.

We are strongly reminded of "Domby and Son,"—the scene on board The Cautious Clara, where Captain Bunsby comes at the solicitation of his friend Cuttle to give his opinion (in the words of Cuttle) "in regard to my friend Wal'r; likewise my other friend, Sol. Gills, which is a character for you to come within hail of, being a man of science, which is the mother of inwention, and knows no law." "The great commander" thus commences his memorable "opinion"

> "My name's Jack Bunsby!"
>
> "He was christened John," cried the delighted Captain Cuttle. "Hear him!"
>
> "And what I says," pursued the voice, after some deliberation, "I stands to."
>
> The Captain, with Florence on his arm, nodded at the auditory, and seemed to say, "Now he's coming out! This is what I meant when I brought him."
>
> "Whereby," proceeded the voice, "why not? If so, what odd? Can any man say otherwise? No. Avast then!"
>
> When it had pursued its train of argument to this point, the voice stopped and rested. It then proceeded very slowly, thus:
>
> "Do I believe this here Son and Heir's gone down, my lads? Mayhap. Do I say so? Which? If a skipper stands out by Sen' George's Channel, making for the Downs, what's right ahead of him? The Goodwins. He isn't forced to run upon the Goodwins; but he may. The bearings of this observation lays in the application of it. That ain't no part of my duty. Awast then, keep a bright lookout for'ard, and good luck to you!"
>
> The voice here went out of the back parlor and into the street, taking the commander of "The Cautious Clara" with it, and accompanying him on board again with all convenient expedition, where he im-diately turned in, and refreshed his mind with a nap.

It strikes us this scene, is a counterpart of that at Framingham.

Our Dead Congressman.

In the Marietta correspondence of the Cincinnati Times and Chronicle, of June 5th, we find the following token of the high esteem in which our honored friend, Judge Wilson, was held by his early friends:

> To-day (Wednesday) is Commencement proper. The shock produced by the announcement of the death of Mr. Wilson, the Alumni orator, was most startling and painful. The shadow of the event rested upon all the exercises of the day.
>
> In place of the address by Mr. Wilson, resolutions adopted by the Alumni Association of the college were read by the Hon. Amos Layman, of Columbus, who was his class-mate, and a very feeling and appropriate tribute to his memory was paid by the same gentleman. President Andrews also spoke of his student life, and recalled vividly to our minds, who knew Mr. Wilson in college, the student who was always overflowing with spirit and frolic.
>
> ### THE FUNERAL.
>
> Born at Reading, of one of the old pioneer families of Hamilton county, Mr. Wilson was known to very many of your readers. A slender, bright and spirited lad of sixteen, he entered the Sophomore Class of Marietta College in 1843, and graduated in 1846. His presence, I well remember, was like some happy bird song among duller sounds, for his good humor and gladness were irrepressible.
>
> After graduation, he was for some time Professor of Farmers' College, at College Hill, studying law in the meantime. In 1852 he went to Oregon, and soon took rank as an able and energetic young lawyer. Advancing step by step, he became Prosecuting Attorney, Clerk of the Supreme Court, Reporter, and then, for eight years held the position of Judge of that highest court in the State. During this period he received the honorary degree of LL D. from his Alma Mater.
>
> In 1870 he was a candidate for Congress, and came near being elected, though the majority against his party had been considerable. Last year he was renominated, and was elected by a handsome majority. Having removed his family to Georgetown, D. C., and fixed his home there for the term of his Congressional service, he had come here in pursuance of a long cherished purpose to meet once more his classmates, and renew the associations of his student life. Tuesday afternoon and evening was spent in one joyous greeting of friends. In the evening, especially, his friends remarked that they had never seen him look brighter or happier. As he was passing to his room to retire for the night, about 11 o'clock, he fell upon the floor, and at half-past one in the morning "the last of earth" had come to him. Commencement day opened to us with the announcement, Wilson is dead. It seldom happens, I presume, that such a bolt falls out of such a clear and hopeful sky. It smote the hearts of hundreds with sadness that day. The Alumni, on convening, passed the following resolutions:
>
> "1. Resolved, This Association has heard with profound sorrow the announcement of the death of the Hon. Joseph G. Wilson, LL.D., representative in the Congress of the United States from Oregon, and recently Judge of the Superior Court of that State, one of the ablest and most distinguished of our Alumni, who died so suddenly and unexpected at the house of his friend, R. P. Iams, in this city, at half-past 1 o'clock this morning, in the 47th year of his age.
>
> "2. Resolved, In this sudden death of our beloved brother the associated Alumni of Marietta College have lost one from whom they, as well as his adopted State and the whole nation, had abundant reason to expect greater things in the future than even the past of his eventful life has manifested.
>
> "3. Resolved, We tender our sorrowing sympathy and condolence in this hour of their great bereavement to his family and kindred and friends, and we will attend in a body the funeral of our departed brother.
>
> "4. Resolved, The Alumni, in respect to his memory, will wear crape on the left arm as they move in procession to the church to-day to attend the Commencement exercises."
>
> In accordance with the above resolutions, the large body of the Alumni remained over till today, and at 10 o'clock, with a large number of citizens, met at the house of Mr. Iams, where the funeral services were held. His wife, who had accompanied Mr. Wilson on his visit, was present, One brother, Mr. Theophilus Wilson, of Avondale, and two sisters, Mrs. Pyle and Miss Harriet Wilson, of College Hill, were present also. The four surviving children were at their home in Georgetown. President Andrews and Professor Beach conducted the services. The tender words of sympathy and the truthful words of eulogy they spoke found a response in every heart.
>
> His remains rest in Mound Cemetery. He loved Marietta, and he had often expressed the wish that he might rest there at last. It is as he wished, and nowhere could more loving hands have prepared the grave.
>
> The Alumni have ordered the printing of the address he had prepared, and, together with it, a brief memorial of him embodying the resolutions passed, and the remarks made at the funeral. This work was committed to the hands of the Hon. Amos Layman, of Columbus, who was his classmate, and who was with him when he died. All was done that could be done by the Alumni and citizens to express to the family the universal sympathy that prevails. ALUMNUS.

A Woman's View of a Question in which Woman is Concerned.

PORTLAND, July 15, 1873.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

Inclosed I send you a copy of the communication which was sent to the New Northwest for publication, by the widow of G. W. Brown, but which the editor of that journal rejected, or at least declined to publish on the plea of limited space, and a fear that she would tire "the dear public" with too much upon one theme. Should the columns of the OREGONIAN prove to be less crowded than those of the New Northwest, and you conclude to insert the article, I hope you will beg those of the "dear public" who are "tired" of the "theme" to consider themselves under no compulsion to read it.

H. C. BROWN.

PORTLAND, July 1, 1873.

On the morning of June 20th, I was much pleased with the reappearance of the New Northwest but judge of my surprise, pain and mortification when, on perusing its columns, to find therein an editorial palliating the past course of conduct pursued by Mr. Hipple (or Mitchell) Had a like editorial appeared in a man's rights journal, I should have hoped for Mrs. Duniway to come promptly forward and with sound logic and severe criticism silence the author beyond any inclination ever to repeat the offense, but, inasmuch as said editorial was published in a woman's rights journal, and the writer is Mrs Duniway herself, I can only hope that she will not feel disappointed, but be content if her views as set forth in said article should remain exclusively her own, for it is hardly probable that any right minded person will ever indorse them, most assuredly right-minded women will not. But for this obnoxious editorial I should feel no call for my present painful undertaking. But when a leader of an honorable cause, as a leader, commits an error, or does a wrong, it not only becomes a privilege, but also a duty, of the friends and supporters of such cause to point out the error and call the offending leader to account. Few, if any, will deny that Mrs. Duniway committed a grave error in palliating Mr. Mitchell's course, and did the cause of woman a grievous wrong in holding him up as worthy to become "the special champion of the rights of all women." But for her course I should have been content to leave Mr. Mitchell in the care of his constituents. Now, as a true, sincere friend to Mrs. Duniway, and to the cause of which she justly claims to be a leader, and one who subscribes for the New Northwest and is willing "to contribute her own opinions to its columns," if she be allowed, whether they coincide with the editor's or not—to such I feel it a duty to review Mrs Duniway's editorial in reference to Mr. Mitchell. With lively sympathy she sets aside the charge of fraud by saying "the accusation that Mr. Mitchell is a defaulter, in direct opposition to the positive declarations of his business partner to the contrary, partakes of the nature of downright persecution." Does Mrs. Duniway forget the fact that Mr. Hipple (or Mitchell) absconding, taking with him moneys which did not rightfully belong to him (notwithstanding he endeavored to leave an equivalent), to say the least, was taking an unwarrantable liberty, which in itself amounts to a wrong of no small magnitude, but which all are ready to admit dwindles into insignificance when compared to the baser crimes of seduction, desertion, adultery and bigamy, with all of which Mr Mitchell has been charged, and as yet has not satisfactorily denied? But of these charges Mrs. Duniway says: "I do not propose to seriously discuss at present, wishing to consider everybody innocent until proven guilty." Where is her sympathy for down trodden woman, of which we have all heard so much? Does she not waste "a golden opportunity" to show forth the cruel oppression of woman, the treachery and tyranny of man? And if she requires stronger evidence and clearer proof to establish guilt than living victims of the crimes charged, then Heaven forbid that she should ever become our supreme judge. That Mr. Mitchell is guilty, and that he felt the enormity of his crimes, is evident from his explanation, and to hide them as much as possible from the eyes of the world, and to escape a just retribution, he did what was a very "natural thing" for a criminal to do—changed his name, and understood well what Mrs. Duniway does not seem to think of: that had he applied to the Oregon or any other State Legislature to have his assumed name legalized, it would have led directly to the disclosure of the very facts which it was designed to conceal; and he understands his profession, too, sufficiently well to know the importance of concealing his very foot prints until beyond the reach of that law to which Mrs. Duniway is pleased to refer his frauds for redress.

Concerning Mr. Mitchell's election to the Senate, Mrs. Duniway says: "As a leader in the woman movement, we personally exerted an influence in his behalf that if used against him would have insured his defeat." Under existing circumstances, had other than Mrs. Duniway herself charged her with saying this I should have grown indignant and defended her to the best of my ability. But as it is, I dare not deny that she may place his political career on the same easy balance whereon she weighed his moral one, and if so, what more will it require than a soulless speech in favor of woman suffrage, delivered in the Senate Chamber, to turn the scale to her satisfaction and convince her that he did what he could for the cause of woman; and Mr. Mitchell can well afford to lend his voice to any cause—even a just one—if thereby he can but stay the indignation of an outraged people.

But Mrs Duniway claims for Mr. Mitchell repentance. Pray, where is the repentance? According to Bible doctrine, repentance begets humility. Had Mr. Mitchell possessed that Christian grace in an average degree, knowing his own record to be a dark one, he would never have aspired to the highest office within the gift of a State. Did he possess it even now that his record has been shown to the people, he would at once resign his high position as the only restitution that he can make to an injured constituency. Whether he will do this at all remains to be seen; but Mrs. Duniway does not seem to think it necessary or probable, but urges him to make restitution for his wrongs to women by becoming the special champion of the rights of women. If Mr. Mitchell would make restitution in part (which is all that he ever can do.) for his wrongs to woman, let him provide comfortably for his weary, worn-out deserted wife in Pennsylvania, and look after the interests of his deserted children there. Let him restore the long lost daughter, the lovely Jessie, to the arms of her heart-broken mother—that the sweet child may realize the depth and fullness of an own mother's love, the worth and tenderness of a mother's care. But Heaven protect the cause of Woman's Rights, from such a withering blight as Senator Mitchell's influence. It would require but few such champions as he to consign our noble cause to utter oblivion. Imagine Mr. Mitchell in the Senate chamber lifting his voice in behalf of down trodden woman, in mocking tones "demanding for woman an equal show with men in the race for success in life," while in one State there still lives the victim of his betrayal and desertion, also two deserted children there, in other States deceived daughter and a deceived wife, living a proofs that his practical life has not only been in direct opposition to woman's rights and human rights, but also in direct violation of the holiest commands engraved on the tablets of stone. I ask, might not sarcastic scorn justly curl the lip of every pure, noble-minded Senator in the assembly? Let women answer.

But in conclusion, let me say to mothers, when in coming years you turn from the "the green grave of Senator Mitchell, where you have taught your little ones to lisp his name, with your own heart filled with thanks to God that he lived to aid in the great moral struggle," pause for an instant beside another, per chance a lowly grave, and though you may not care to teach your little ones to lisp the name of Sadie Hoon, you may whisper as a word of warning to your daughter, who is budding into a promising womanhood "There lies the victim of Senator Mitchell's seduction, his deserted wife.

We refer, as to the character of this magnificent grant of land, to CLARENCE KING, Esq., the U S Geologist for this coast, who is familiar with it from personal observation; also to the elaborate report of the Hon B J Pengra, late Surveyor General of Oregon, on this road and lands, from which we quote 'There is but very little of the entire grant but what is valuable for either Farming, Grazing or Lumbering purposes"

As shares are cancelled, the average of acres to the remaining shares will naturally increase, and from cash sales dividends will be declared

CITY.

THE NEW CRICKET CLUB.—Not more than two weeks ago an English Cricket Club was organized in this city, and although but a short time has [illegible] since initiatory steps were first taken, the Club has a membership of about 25. By the [illegible] Ajax there arrived all the necessary paraphernalia for the Club. This consists of three bats, three balls, two pair of gauntlets, and two pair of leg guards. The wickets did not arrive, but they will be made in the city, as they are of very simple mechanism. The bats are made of the best English willow wood, and the handles of flexible pieces of cane. These slats of cane are cut thin and wrapped very firmly together with the [illegible] silk twine. The lower ends of the cane are "dovetailed" into the body of the bat, thus rendering the whole stronger than if the entire bat was made from a solid piece of wood. The material of which the handle is composed, and the manner in which it is attached to the bat, [illegible] the whole stick much more flexible, elastic and capable of resisting the rough usage, and of meeting the peculiar requirements necessary in the game. A very powerful blow will be required to break the bat. The balls are about the size of those used in the game of base ball, but are as hard and heavy as if made of the most compact wood. In the center of the ball is a small body of compactly wrapped twine and [illegible], over which is sewed several thicknesses of morocco sole leather. The gauntlets which are used by the bowler and wicket keeper are composed of the best and toughest quality of [illegible], padded and quilted. Around the wrists are [illegible] of wood, sewed in the leather, fitting [illegible] to the limb. The padding in the gauntlet is to [illegible] the force of the ball, and the pieces [illegible] the wrist are to ward off the blows which [illegible] bruise, if not fracture, the limb. The leg guards are also made of leather, and are [illegible] the "shins" from the ball. The [illegible], of which there are two, together with what we have already enumerated, constitute all that is necessary in playing this interesting and [illegible] national game of our English cousins. In a few days the wickets are to be finished, and the Club will be ready to commence practicing. By the [illegible] of next week the Club will be in trim, and we shall expect to witness this intricate [illegible] for the first time in the city. Most of the members of the Club are conversant with the game of cricket, but are out of practice. The [illegible] will probably be selected below the city.

[illegible] CLAY.—A few days ago Mr. Habersham, Superintendent of Streets, examined some of the clay thrown to the surface by the excavations for the Stark street sewer. From the appearance and texture of the clay, Mr. Habersham [illegible] that it would make potter's clay of no inferior [illegible]. Without mixing the clay, or even [illegible] it, he caused a small quantity to be subjected to a white heat. The test resulted very [illegible], and Mr. Fisk, who made the experiment, gives it as his opinion that with proper in[illegible] the clay could be manufactured into [illegible] kinds of pottery. There appears to be [illegible] of this clay; in fact it is not [illegible] that at the depth of several feet from [illegible] a continuous strata underlies the entire [illegible]. It is the opinion of Mr. Habersham that [illegible] deposits of this clay can be found in [illegible]. If it proves to be a superior article, [illegible] could be utilized in many ways, [illegible] in the laying of sewers. Tile [illegible] such circumstances would be a [illegible] and more durable system than [illegible]. Earth removed from large [illegible] thus be converted into terra [illegible] for less than must necessarily [illegible] the pottery establishment at [illegible] the article and ship it to this city. By [illegible] ture of sand any degree of [illegible] can be obtained that may be [illegible] manufacture of pottery [illegible] is of sufficient importance to [illegible] and experiment; and [illegible] definite and satis[illegible] at ere long.

[illegible] was observed yester[illegible] the roof of a [illegible] Second street, near the [illegible] and also the bells of the De[illegible]. This brought out [illegible] in double quick time. The [illegible], occupied by [illegible] probably originated from a [illegible]. So quick[illegible] responded, and with such [illegible] that the fire [illegible] before the hose [illegible]. To extinguish the [illegible] but the [illegible] of a few minutes. More [illegible] than the fire, as [illegible] flooded before the De[illegible] left the [illegible]. A few hundred dol[illegible] all.

[illegible] CLEANING.—In another column we [illegible] No. 1,173, in relation to the cleaning of [illegible], to which general attention is called. By [illegible] of the Committee on Streets and Public [illegible] R. A. Habersham, Superintendent [illegible], notifies that the provisions of the [illegible] will be observed on and after [illegible], or be treated as a misde[illegible]. After that date [illegible] of the pro[illegible] of the [illegible] will be strictly enforced by the [illegible] Judge. Persons who [illegible] the [illegible] of the ordinance should not fail to [illegible] and comply with its requirements. It appears to us that the subject of [illegible] too lightly regarded in [illegible], and it is an encouraging indication to [illegible] the [illegible] is to be enforced to the [illegible].

[illegible] Arrangements are [illegible] between Mr. C. W. K[illegible], one of the proprietors of Oro Fino Theater, and J. R. McCabe, of San Francisco, [illegible] for the Pacific [illegible]. The object is to [illegible] the Oro Fino Theater for a [illegible], commencing on the first of September. [illegible] are [illegible] Mr. McCabe's intention to bring to [illegible] troupe as [illegible] can be [illegible] in San Francisco. The [illegible] will [illegible] the last of August [illegible]. During the Fair [illegible] the company will play at Salem, and then [illegible] this city.

[illegible] Yesterday morning the An[illegible] with a full freight [illegible] large number of passengers. In order to [illegible] for the future, the [illegible] at the wharf yesterday. [illegible] start down to Astoria this morning and [illegible] every other day. At [illegible] the Annie Stewart [illegible] for Portland. Daily trips [illegible] will continue hereafter be[illegible] the two points mentioned. On Sundays, [illegible] will remain at Astoria and the Stewart [illegible].

[illegible] CHURCH.—The frame for the new church [illegible] built on the Cornell road, some distance from [illegible] by the [illegible] members of the Presbyterian Church, of whom Rev. H. Gaus is pastor, [illegible] be raised. Lumber sufficient to complete [illegible] has already been hauled on the ground. [illegible] in the work has been occasioned by a [illegible] of the carpenters being compelled to stop [illegible] to their hay crops. By or before [illegible] ber it is thought that the building will be ready for divine service.

[illegible] The following is a list of officers [illegible], Champions Red Cross, [illegible] beginning July, 1873, installed on [illegible] Hall: Com., A. F. Johnson; [illegible] Brown; R. S., J. H. Johnson, [illegible]; T., Ella Lucas, C. of H., [illegible]; I. G., A. W. Powers, O. G., [illegible] Brown. Evening of meeting, Friday.

[illegible] ARRIVED.—This bark arrived [illegible] at 4 o'clock P. M. in tow of the [illegible]. The Edward James arrived at [illegible] several weeks ago direct from [illegible] a large number of Chinese passengers and a full freight. After discharging [illegible] for this port. For the present [illegible] at the foot of Main street.

[illegible].—The bark Rival, which [illegible] on Tuesday morning, is lying at the [illegible] of Main street, discharging cargo. Mer[illegible] of that description brought from San [illegible] on coasters is generally discharged at [illegible] wharf, but all the room being occupied [illegible], the Rival was compelled to land at [illegible] & M[illegible]'s wharf.

[illegible] COMMAND.—Capt. Noyes, late of the [illegible], who left this city for the Sound [illegible] ago, has assumed command of [illegible]. This vessel is at present lying [illegible], loading with lumber for Hong[illegible]

CHANCERY SUITS.—All the jurors in the Circuit Court were discharged yesterday for the term, as all the criminal and law cases on the docket were disposed of. To day the Court will begin on the chancery suits. There are about 80 suits.

FINALLY DECIDED.

It is an old but true saying that a man is known by the books he reads and the company he keeps. This saying is illustrative of the great sewing machine war, in which nearly all of the second-class machines have played prominent parts, expending much ammunition and making forced marches attended with great loss. But our readers have not seen the name of the world-renowned GROVER & BAKER SEWING MACHINE flourished before the people in the above connection, and this dignified reserve has established the popularity of the GROVER & BAKER SEWING MACHINE, now and forever. It stands on its respectability and merits. These machines make the ELASTIC STITCH and SHUTTLE STITCH, and will be sold on installments of $10 per month. W. T. Shanahan, agent, 71 First street.

If you want the woven wire bed, parlor and bedroom suits, the best spring and pure hair mattresses, go to Hurgren & Shindler.

Make it your special business to call at Jos. Kohn & Co.'s, and look over their stock of Spring and Summer Goods, which is simply immense. They don't ask two prices for articles in their line, but place them at their lowest limit. If you want to be convinced of this fact, just drop in at the Pioneer Clothing Establishment and satisfy yourself in the matter. They keep only the best.

If you want pure, fine liquors of any kind, go to E. D Tyne's, northwest corner of Oak and First streets, agent for the sale of Jessie Moore & Co.'s fine Old Bourbon and Rye Whiskies of Louisville, Ky.

The Methodists at Pendleton and in that vicinity are moving in the matter of erecting a house of public worship.

Rev. W. R. Stewart and wife, of Salem, celebrated the anniversary of their wedding last Monday evening, or rather their friends celebrated it, by presenting them with divers and sundry pieces of ware and implements of a ligneous character.

The Pendletonian of the 12th says: "Last Wednesday Messrs. Burk and Cram went fishing on Birch creek. They were some distance up the stream, but they caught a hundred beautiful trout, some of them measuring over a foot in length. Both being good and patient fishermen, they can always be expected to bring in fish."

The following officers for Covenant Lodge, No. 12, I. O. O. F., at Harrisburg, were installed for the current term, on the 11th inst., by D D G M., C. W. Starr J. P. McCartney, N. G W. C. Davis, V G, Gerst, R S., Henry Reams, Treas; S. R Woodbury, W, J. C. Bolon, C, Levi Douglas, O G, T T. Roach, I G, M. Fuller, R. S. N. G, J. P. Schooling, L S. N G, J. J. Brown, R. S V. G.; Jas. Riley, L. S. V. G

A correspondent writing from Harrisburg yesterday says: "The postoffice at this place has now a money order office attached to it. The city and surrounding country are almost deserted—the people having fled to the mountains in search of berries. The late rains have put a dampener on hay making, which had just begun, but presume it will be renewed in earnest in a few days. Both hay and grain crops are better than have been known for several years.

Mr. David Looney, of Marion county, was driving a four-horse reaper in his field, the other day, when, unluckily for him, he espied a nest of young squirrels. Game blood was up in his veins at once, and leaving his horses and reaper standing, he went for those squirrels. Game blood got up also in the horses' veins, and they went for the four corners of that field. Mr. Looney subsequently picked up such portions of the reaper as he could find. Strangely and fortunately, however, the horses were whole and unhurt.

From the Statesman: "Mr. D. H. Murphy, County Clerk, was engaged yesterday in posting up the costs in the case of the State vs. Whitley. The aggregate is rather a startling sum for a poor man to contemplate. We believe, though, that Whitley is not exactly poor, and possibly he may not have to pay the costs, after all. Summarized, the expenses were about as follows: Witnesses at Dallas, $149; at Salem, $1,057 80. Trial, $12. District Attorney's fee, $10. Clerk's fees in Polk county, $58 75; in Marion, $71 05. Sheriff's fees in Polk county, $349 50; in Marion, $44 45. Sundry small items, $49 80. Total, $1,892 25.

The Oregon institution for the education of the blind, located at Salem, has recently been presented with a case of books in the raised letter type, by the Right Rev. Dr. Morris, of Portland. The package contained two handsomely bound books of the Psalms, a Book of Common Prayer, and a quantity of text-books for the school, all of which will be of great service to the pupils. This, being the first donation of any kind that the institution has received, is highly prized on that account, as well as for its intrinsic value. It is an important addition to the already valuable library, which is now altogether the finest of the kind on the Pacific coast.

THE TERRITORIES.

The quartz mines in Boise and Alturas counties are doing better this year than ever before.

Mr. J. W. Irwin, of Seattle, has received the contract for the construction of the gas works in that city. Already work has been commenced.

The approximate geographical position of Tacoma is as follows: Latitude, 47 deg. 16 min. north; longitude, 122 deg. 12 min. west from Greenwich.

Boise City is afflicted with one or more light-fingered gents, who have managed to get away with small sums from stores and dwellings, quite frequently of late.

We learn that Rev. R. W. Summers has resigned the missionary charge of the Episcopal Church in Seattle. His resignation will take effect in November.

The first race of the spring meeting over the Boise City course, on the 10th inst., was a mile heat run by three horses and won by John Early's mare, "Emma McCormick;" time, 1:53½

At the city election in Seattle, Monday last, the following were elected: John Collins, Mayor; E. W. Blake, Recorder; Fred. Minick, Marshal; and Messrs. Leary, Abrams, Slotter, Anderson, Maydenbauer and Waddell, Councilmen.

The Champions of the Red Cross are flourishing finely east of the mountains. The Camp at Boise City has 150 members. There are Encampments also at the following points: Lewiston, Waitsburg, Dayton, Walla Walla, Pendleton, La Grande, Cove, Union, Baker City, Silver City, and Idaho City. A grand convention will soon be held to form a new district, embracing all these encampments.

The Idaho mines are doing remarkably well—all the reports from that quarter being encouraging. These mines are nearly all cut up into 10,000 shares each, and their price is comparatively small—Golden Chariot selling at $160,000, and Mahogany $100,000. Minnesota has $20,000 shares, and therefore sells at the rate of $200,000. Minnesota and Golden Chariot expect to pay dividends within a month or two.

A statement was published that "a $25,000 printing office had been ordered for Tacoma," whereupon an Olympia paper ironically and facetiously remarks: "The parties who are to take the printing office there have also, we understand, contracted for the construction of a building surpassing the New York Herald building in magnificence; also a ten story stone hotel, much finer than the Grand Hotel of San Francisco, and the managing editor has already preempted Mount Rainier for a sanctum during the dog days."

The Idaho Statesman of the 12th says: "Charley Kohny's brother in law, of Placerville, a young man about 20 years of age, called Louis, and only six months from Germany, shot himself at Quartzburg on Wednesday last, the ball entering just below the breast bone and passing directly through the body and coming out near the back bone. The occasion of the attempted suicide was some trifling difficulty with his brother-in-law. He was alive several hours afterward, although it is said there are no hopes of his recovery."

COLEMAN'S EUCALYPTUS

DR. J. S. COLEMAN'S [illegible] of Eucalyptus is a preparation combining all the valuable medicinal qualities of the Eucalyptus, which is cultivated in nearly every California garden for its [illegible] utility, having become the household remedy for all diseases of the KIDNEYS, BLADDER and URINARY CANAL, and SEMINAL WEAKNESS. It seems to have a direct affinity for the GENITO-URINARY ORGANS and their surroundings, and cures them by its alterative, healing and balsamic properties more effectually than any other known remedy.

It is an invaluable remedy for all [illegible] of the mucous and serous membranes, such as BRONCHITIS, HACKING COUGH, NAUSEA DURING PREGNANCY, DYSPEPSIA, LEUCORRHŒA, etc.

This preparation is the result of Dr. Coleman's experiments with the medicinal properties of the tree in the U.S. Marine Hospital in San Francisco, in 1871 and 1872, where he had unusual facilities for testing the various methods of preparing the remedy, and its uses. It can be relied upon as certain to give the promised results, and hundreds of testimonials of its efficacy can be seen at his office, 405 Kearney street, San Francisco.

COLEMAN'S DOUBLE EXTRACT OF EUCALYPTUS is a powerful, yet harmless, febrifuge, and is a special preparation for the treatment of the malarious fevers of our interior valleys, and is warranted to cure any case of FEVER AND AGUE treated with it according to directions, while the baneful results of the usual Quinine and arsenical remedies for those diseases are entirely avoided.

FOR PHYSICIANS, Coleman's Fluid Extract of Eucalyptus in 1 lb bottles.

Caldwell of Springfield.

NEW JERSEY. (1780.)

Here's the spot. Look around you. Above on the hight
Lay the Hessians encamped. By that church on the right
Stood the gaunt Jersey farmers. And here ran a wall—
You may dig anywhere and you'll turn up a ball.
Nothing more. Grasses spring, waters run, flowers blow
Pretty much as they did ninety-three years ago.

Nothing more, did I say? Stay one moment: you've heard
Of Caldwell, the parson, who once preached the word
Down at Springfield? What—No? Come—that's bad; why he had
All the Jerseys aflame! And they gave him the name
Of the "rebel high priest." He stuck in their gorge,
For he loved the Lord God—and he hated King George!

He had cause, you might say! When the Hessians that day
Marched up with Knyphausen they stopped on their way
At the "Farms," where his wife, with a child in her arms,
Sat alone in the house. How it happened none knew
But God—and that one of the hireling crew
Who fired the shot! Enough!—there she lay,
And Caldwell, the chaplain, her husband, away!

Did he preach—did he pray? Think of him, as you stand
By the old church to-day,—think of him and that band
Of militant ploughboys! See the smoke and the heat
Of that reckless advance—of that straggling retreat!
Keep the ghost of that wife, foully slain, in your view—
And what could you—what should you, what would you do?

Why, just what he did! They were left in the lurch
For the want of more wadding. He ran to the church,
Broke the door, stripped the pews, and dashed out in the road
With his arms full of hymn books, and threw down his load
At their feet! Then, above all the shouting and shots,
Rang his voice—"Put Watts into 'em—Boys, give 'em Watts!"

And they did. That is all. Grasses spring, flowers blow
Pretty much as they did ninety-three years ago.
You may dig anywhere and you'll turn up a ball—
But not always a hero like this—and that's all.

—Bret Harte.

Reuter's Walking Advertisement.

[Correspondence of the New York Tribune.]

LONDON, June 21.—London now comprises two classes of inhabitants, those who have seen the Shah of Persia, and those who have not seen him, or, more concisely, the happy and the wretched. There is an extraordinary excitement about this Oriental potentate among all varieties of people. Since he landed on Wednesday at Dover he has filled the newspapers, and been the only topic of conversation. The fashionable world throngs palace and saloon, crowds about the throne [illegible] in Stafford House and the Guildhall to get a glimpse of this tawny savage. Fleets and armies are put in motion to do him honor. Buckingham Palace is turned into a hotel to lodge him. The great bodies of state, the ministers, the diplomatic corps, the royal household, the prince and princesses of the blood, the queen herself, rival each other in their attentions. The streets through which he passes are lined with spectators. In a word, London has got shah on the brain, and a plain man might be puzzled to say why.

To begin with, a ghastly whisper has been heard that he is not the shah, that the real shah is comfortably shut up in Teherân, and has sent a lay figure to represent him. It is a pity this is not true. It would be the best joke ever known at the expense of such a number of the best people. But I fear there is no reason to doubt that the genuine monarch is here. The talk of his having fooled Europe with a substitute is only an extravagance of the skeptical gossip which circulates in certain circles. We heard other queer stories before he came, especially from Berlin. They said he slapped the empress on the shoulder. Another version of this veracious legend was that he asked the Imperial Augusta to get out of his way, as he could not see through her. It is, I believe, true that he touched her on the arm to call her attention to a question, and that I suppose was, to the aristocratic mind of Berlin, an inconceivable impertinence. That Berlin bored him with its Buckram etiquette all credible witnesses agree. How much he suffered, and what degree of relief his tortured spirit sought, is dimly hinted by an anecdote going about on the [illegible] good authority. The emperor himself deigned to perceive that his guest was weary, and besought him to say what would amuse him. The shah answered that it would be a gratification to him if the emperor would have the kindness to order an execution. The worst thing said of him is that he is dirty, which seems very unlikely.

Men who have been with the shah from his entrance into Europe, say that Europe has told upon him wonderfully. He has changed some of his habits, waived immutable laws of Persian etiquette, and tried to be civil to his hosts after their fashion instead of his own. I heard that he really seemed to understand the significance of the great naval display at Dover, and is eager to see the greater one at Spithead on Monday. He was so content with it that he minded little the drenching he got in London some hours later on the way from Charing Cross to Buckingham Palace. All military matters interest him. For one, I should like to know what he thought of the Household Cavalry which escorted him, the most brilliant and most useless troops in Europe. His majesty can ride if he can do nothing else. You will have heard what a chase across the country he led the burgomaster of Brussels—an incident [illegible] of Mr. Joaquin Miller's being challenged to ride to the hounds against a noted English sportsman. Mr. Miller told a friend that he should certainly break the Englishman's neck, and I think he is likely to keep his word. For another thing, his majesty, the shah, has learned to drink [illegible].

To anybody behind the scenes, nothing could have been more amusing than the solemn debate which filled the papers a week before the shah came, about the political significance of his visit. The truth is now pretty generally known. The shah is in Europe at the instance of Baron Reuter, for the promotion of the extraordinary concession which Reuter obtained from him last year. The terms of that concession, or the substance of it, were published here a month ago, but attracted no attention. They attracted a good deal when they appeared in Wednesday's Times. I need not repeat the details which you will have already published. It is enough to say that they give Baron Reuter a power to establish a monopoly and a jurisdiction in Persia greater than ever the East India company established in India. Any Englishman who cares anything about the existing English empire over India knows that its relations, and the relations of England with Persia, are of the last importance to the permanent security of the empire. England and Russia have long been diplomatic rivals at Teherân. Yet it appears certain that the concession obtained by Baron Reuter which puts in his hands the keys to India and the power to say whether he will make Persia Russian or English, was obtained without the knowledge or suspicion of the English government. They have often been badly served by their envoys but never worse than by Mr. Wm. Taylour Thompson, who draws pay as minister plenipotentiary to his majesty of Persia. The Russians knew all about it, no doubt. On the surface they are the first beneficiaries, since the railway which Reuter is to build between the Caspian and the Persian gulf opens a military road for Russia to the Persian capital. Now that the thing is done, the government has taken alarm, but what can they do? A well informed writer says that Baron Reuter has been working at the scheme for years, and that he did not carry his point till the famine was at its height in 1871. The concession was issued at Teheran July 25, 1872. It does not seem to have been heard of in the English foreign office for ten months, or the import of it to have been comprehended even then. When they heard the shah was coming to Europe, it dawned upon the astute officials who preside over the foreign relations of England that it would be a good time to get something out of him, to impress him with the power of England, to persuade him that England was a better ally than Russia, and so on. They made preparations accordingly, and when the preparations had been made, discovered that they were too late, and that Baron Reuter was to be impressed and persuaded instead of the shah. They knew Baron Reuter well enough to understand that there was but one way of reaching him. He had bought the concession, paid probably a very large, but certainly a considerable sum for it, and he must be bought out or left in possession. And the means to buy him out, if you please? Imagine the figure Lord Granville or Lord Enfield, the Duke of Argyll or Mr. Grant Duff will cut when they come to explain to parliament that they have been asleep the last five years, while a clever German Jew has seized upon the gateway to India, and bought up the descendants of Darius, and holds in his own hands the future of their imperial policy. If Baron Reuter is to have his price—and nobody yet knows what it is—the house of commons must vote the money, and it is not a nice story that will have to be told as a prelude to the vote.

Meantime, the baron wants money to build his railways, to dig his mines, to work the whole concession. He has brought the shah over to help him get it. The visit is a gigantic advertisement. Nothing was ever done before on so great a scale; no Barnum or pill doctor can hold up his head hereafter. It is not Baron Reuter who pays the bills but the sovereigns of Europe. Before the shah set foot on English shores, the English government knew why he came, and in whose interest; knew that his coming was part of the bargain between him and the baron, and that the cunning news agent would reap the benefit of the welcome they had undertaken to give this oriental Modoc. But it was too late to change. The shah, after all, is still shah. Eastern princes are capricious. Who knows that he may not revoke the concession? English newspapers have already begun to suggest to him that if, on experiment, he does not like it, he can tumble the baron into a tank, which would serve as a warning, also, to too enterprising speculators in the future.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

Financial.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, July 16, 1873.

Gold in New York to-day, 115¾.

Portland Legal Tender rates, 85½ buying; 86½ selling.

Gold bars are quotable at 890 fine.

Wheat in Liverpool—Average California, 11s 9d@11s 11d, club, 12s 3d@12s 6d.

Our local finances are in an apparent easy condition and rather more active than for some time past. It is now thought that the number of grain and wool buyers in our market the present season will insure a better supply of funds than was enjoyed last year. At present monetary matters are working very satisfactorily, and hopes are entertained that no recurrence of the last season's stringency will be experienced. Rates of interest and discount are still higher than the legitimate margins in business will warrant, and must come down to a lower figure before the trade of the country is brought to a healthy standard.

English Wheat Market.

A circular letter on the English Wheat Market, dated June 19th, has reached us, from which we condense the following, premising it with the statement, that doubtless some of the wheat, classed as Californian, was shipped direct from this port. We have not, as yet, got full credit for any of the good wheat sent to foreign markets, but we bide our time. The circular says:

The weather has been rather changeable during the past week, there has not been quite sufficient warmth to give great impetus to vegetation, but still the condition of the crops has unquestionably improved, they are, however, in a very backward state. From some neighborhoods, it is reported that although the Wheat plant is healthy, Barley has a less satisfactory appearance, and has turned yellow. * * * American Spring (Wheat), ex ship, has been sold at some reduction. Californian cargoes have experienced some demand for the Continent, and are the turn dearer for the week. The imports of Wheat into the United Kingdom have been moderate, viz: 613 394 cwt, against 1,130,321 cwt in the previous week. * * * The quantity of Wheat in passage for the United Kingdom, is computed at 1,316,180 qrs, against 1,259,330 qrs. in the previous week. On analyzing the cargoes on the way from San Francisco, of which the average passage has recently been ascertained to be 4½ months, it will be found that 19 vessels, carrying 120,500 qrs., have sailed after the 15th of April, and would, according to this, not arrive during the present season, ending 1st September. This is an uncertain mode of computation, but it is very likely that out of the total now on passage from San Francisco, some such quantity as 120,000 qrs. will not arrive before the 1st September; nor will all the Chilian and Australian cargoes arrive, and the total of 1,316,180 qrs from all ports may, therefore, be considerably reduced. * * * The receipts at New York had been rather liberal, which partly accounts for the recent tendency to a depression in the United States, and there appears to have been a strong speculation for a fall, sales for delivery in all June having been made in some markets at 4 cents ℔ bushel below the spot value. Perhaps this speculation may have been carried too far; at least, the offer c f i from the United States are now no longer so low as before by 6d ℔ qr.

The same authority also states that Californian is rather better, in consequence of a Continental demand. A cargo of California sold at 63s. ℔ 500 pounds for the Continent, and one at 61s. 6d. United Kingdom. California wheat, near at hand, was generally held at 59s 6d@60s for orders, and 61s. to the Continent.

Home Produce Market.

WHEAT—But few transactions are noted, buyers not urging the market but offering $1 50 per cental.

FLOUR—Stocks are somewhat diminished and prices steady at $5 ℔ bbl for best, to $4 50@4 75 for country brands of extra; $3 75 for superfine. A forced sale of 400 sacks extra brought only $4 ℔ bbl, but that cannot be taken as a standard.

OATS—There are a few small lots offering, but buyers are not anxious at current rates which are quoted at 45 cents ℔ bushel. We hear of an order for 500 tons to be shipped to Australia, which will be filled here.

BARLEY—Aside from the local demand which is moderately active, there is but little inquiry. We quote at $1 45@1 50 ℔ cental.

HAY—We notice continued fair receipts of the new crop. Owing, however, to the late rains, holders are firmer and but little can be had for less than $12 50 ℔ ton.

POTATOES—Buyers are only offering 50@60 cents ℔ bushel. The supply at these rates though fair is not excessive.

ONIONS—The new crop comes in sparingly and inquiries are made for lots at 2@3 cents ℔ ℔.

BUTTER—The market is essentially unchanged, the best qualities for table use being in request at 20@25c ℔ pound, while large lots of inferior are offering at 14@16 cents.

CHEESE—The supply from prominent Oregon dairies is good and quotable at 15a17c.

EGGS—The receipts supply the present demand, though not as excessively as a few weeks ago. Shipments are falling off. We quote at 20 cents ℔ dozen.

BACON—The stocks in the hands of dealers have not perceptibly increased since our last reports. Quotations remain at 8@9c ℔ ℔ for Shoulders, 10@12c for Sides, and 12@15c for Hams.

HIDES—The receipts are lighter, and quotations firm at 6@7c ℔ ℔ for green, 7½a8c for green salted, and 14@15c for dry. Damaged lots suffer proportionate reduction.

WOOL—An active state of the market exists, and buyers are numerous. The quotations furnished us, however, are without material change. Some very choice lots are coming to hand, mostly purchased on private terms, but probably at an advance of 2@3c on quotations for good, which are furnished at 20@23c ℔ ℔. We learn of a sale to-day of 15,000 ℔s, to come from Umatilla—price, 22c.

TO THE UNFORTUNATE.
NEW REMEDIES, NEW REMEDIES
Dr. Gibbon's Dispensary,
623 KEARNEY STREET, NEAR COMMERCIAL, San Francisco. Established in 1854, for the treatment of Sexual and Seminal Diseases, such as Gonorrhoea, Gleet, Stricture, Syphilis in all its forms, Seminal Weakness, Impotency, etc. Skin Diseases of years standing and Ulcerated Legs successfully treated.
DR. GIBBON has the pleasure of announcing that he has returned from visiting the principal Hospitals of Europe, and has resumed practice at his Dispensary, 623 Kearny street, corner of Commercial, San Francisco, where his old patients and those requiring his services may find him.
The Doctor has spared neither time nor money in seeking out new remedies, and has returned with increased facilities for the alleviation of human suffering.
Horrible Diseases.
How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering but a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Look at their pallid, emaciated and disfigured faces and their broken-down constitutions, disqualifying them for the happiness of marriage or the enjoyment of life. In this horrid situation thousands suffer until death closes the scene. Let parents, guardians, friends, attend to those who are suffering with any of these horrible, life destroying maladies see that they are cared for and cured before it be too late. Send them immediately to DR. GIBBON, a physician who has made private diseases his especial study for years, and who is certain to cure the most inveterate case, without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted, or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans.
Seminal Weakness.
Seminal Emissions, the consequence of self-abuse. This solitary vice, or depraved sexual indulgence, is practiced by the youth of both sexes to an almost unlimited extent, producing with unerring certainty, the following train of morbid symptoms, unless combatted by scientific medical measures, viz.: Sallow countenance, dark spots under the eyes, pain in the head, ringing in the ears, noise like the rustling of leaves and rattling of chariots, uneasiness about the loins, weakness of the limbs, confused vision, blunted intellect, loss of confidence, diffidence in approaching strangers, a dislike to form new acquaintances, disposition to shun society, loss of memory, hectic flushes, pimples and various eruptions about the face, furred tongue, fetid breath, coughs, consumption, night sweats, monomania and frequent insanity. If relief be not obtained, should apply immediately, either in person or by letter, and have a cure effected by his new and scientific mode of treating this disease, which never fails of effecting a quick and radical cure. Dr. G. will give One Hundred Dollars to any person who will prove satisfactorily to him that he was cured of this complaint by either of the San Francisco quacks.
MARRIED MEN.
Or those who contemplate marriage, who are suffering under any of these fearful maladies, should not forget the sacred responsibility resting upon them, nor delay to obtain immediate relief.
DOCTOR GIBBON is responsible, and will give to each patient a written instrument, binding himself to effect a radical and permanent cure, or make no charge.
CURED AT HOME.
Persons at a distance may be CURED AT HOME, by addressing a letter to Dr. Gibbon, stating case, symptoms, length of time the disease has continued, and have medicines promptly forwarded, free from damage and curiosity, to any part of the country, with full and plain directions. By inclosing Ten Dollars coin, in a registered letter through the Postoffice or through Wells, Fargo & Co., a package of medicine will be forwarded to any part of the Union.
All communications strictly confidential.
Caution to the Unfortunate.
Beware of the San Francisco quacks and pretenders, who, with bogus sworn-to certificates, dupe the unwary. Some of the self-styled doctors, whose names are to be found in the daily and weekly newspapers of San Francisco and other places, are tradesmen and became too lazy to work at their trades. Some are tinsmiths, shoemakers, newspaper carriers, intelligence men by [illegible], etc. The only way to avoid imposition is to make inquiry—it will cost you nothing, and may save you many regrets; for, as advertising physicians in eight cases out of ten are bogus, there is no safety in trusting any of them until you know who and what they are. Dr. Gibbon does not deceive people by exhibiting bogus titles, certificates, pretended patients' letters, etc. Dr. Gibbon will satisfy persons who may call at his offices of his ability to treat diseases that he proposes to cure.
Address DR. J. F. GIBBON, 623 Kearny street, corner Commercial, San Francisco, Post Office Box 1,957.
REMEMBER TO PUT BOX 1,957 ON THE LETTER.
Consultations FREE.
Correspondents will please inform DR. GIBBON that they read his advertisement in the Daily Oregonian. ly5d4pt
